DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

1. The listing of references in the specification is not a proper information disclosure statement. 37 CFR 1.98(b) requires a list of all patents, publications, or other information submitted for consideration by the Office, and MPEP § 609.04(a) states, "the list may not be incorporated into the specification but must be submitted in a separate paper." Therefore, unless the references have been cited by the examiner on form PTO-892, they have not been considered.

Drawings

1. Drawing is objected to because of the following informalities: all boxes should have descriptive labels.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Art Unit: 2685

3. Claim1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

A broad range or limitation together with a narrow range or limitation that falls within the broad range or limitation (in the same claim) is considered indefinite, since the resulting claim does not clearly set forth the metes and bounds of the patent protection desired. See MPEP § 2173.05(c). Note the explanation given by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences in Ex parte Wu, 10 USPQ2d 2031, 2033 (Bd. Pat. App. & Inter. 1989), as to where broad language is followed by "such as" and then narrow language. The Board stated that this can render a claim indefinite by raising a question or doubt as to whether the feature introduced by such language is (a) merely exemplary of the remainder of the claim, and therefore not required, or (b) a required feature of the claims. Note also, for example, the decisions of Ex parte Steigewald, 131 USPQ 74 (Bd. App. 1961); Ex parte Hall, 83 USPQ 38 (Bd. App. 1948); and Ex parte Hasche, 86 USPQ 481 (Bd. App. 1949). In the present instance, claim 1 recites the broad recitation "predetermined path relative to said first unit", and the claim also recites "in particular via non-contacting rotary joints" which is the narrower statement of the range/limitation. For examining purposes the limitation of "in particular via non-contacting rotary joints" is not considered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

5. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kleinerman et al. (U.S. 6,470,047).

With respect to claim 1, Kleinerman et al. disclose a device for wideband transmission of digital signals between a first unit and a second unit mobile along a predetermined path, channel, relative to said first unit in figure 2. Kleinerman et al. disclose a first unit with a data source, element number 34 for generating a serial data stream (Column 10, lines 5-8). Kleinerman et al. disclose a transmitter for generating electrical signals from said serial data stream from said data source (Column 10, lines 24-27). It is considered inherent that a transmitter conductor array, antenna, for conducting said electrical signals generated by said transmitter is necessarily present in Kleinerman et al.'s system since the signals are being transmitted and a conductor array is needed for transmission. Kleinerman et al. also disclose a second unit with a receiver, element number 50, for receiving the signals tapped by said receiving antenna (Column 10, lines 41-44). It is considered inherent that a receiving antenna for tapping electrical signals in the near field of said transmitter conductor array is necessarily present in Kleinerman et al.'s system since an antenna is needed for reception. Kleinerman et al. further disclose a data sink, element numbers 56, 58, 59, and 60, for subsequent processing of the signals received by said receiver and a filter, element number 56, is provided in the receiver for adaptation to transmission characteristics of a data transmission path between said transmitter and said receiver (Column 10, lines 44-47).

With respect to claim 2, Kleinerman et al. disclose that the filter can be dynamically adjusted (Column 4, lines 50-54).

With respect to claim 3, Kleinerman et al. disclose that a micro controller is provided for controlling and diagnosing the device (Column 25, lines 9-14).

With respect to claim 4, Kleinerman et al. disclose that the device is self-learning and dynamically adapts itself to respective conditions of operation (Column 4, lines 50-54).

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Hsieh (U.S. 5,416,815) discloses an adaptive filter in a tomography machine.
